JENNIFER ROY
Partner
Latham & Watkins LLP

Jennifer Roy is a Partner at Latham & Watkins LLP. She provides environmental counseling in all areas of environmental law with a focus on energy and major infrastructure projects. She leverages substantial experience in clean energy, regulatory and environmental compliance matters gained both at Latham and in the private sector. She has built a strong reputation in project entitlement matters, administrative and municipal hearings, land use litigation, and federal environmental review and permitting issues. The array of major projects on which Roy advises includes power plants, transmission lines, renewable energy facilities, liquefied natural gas (LNG) plants, and ocean water desalination projects. She also advises residential and commercial developers. Roy began her career at Latham and rejoined the firm in May 2021 from Venture Global LNG, where she served as Assistant General Counsel and advised on environmental and regulatory matters for the company's portfolio of LNG export terminals. She can be reached at jennifer.roy@lw.com or +1 (858) 523-3980.
